TO MY KINSMEN:

Cousin, cousin, how came you so?

—Twelfth Night I., 5.

Shakespeare must have been a genealogist as well as a doctor and lawyer and a member of most other professions; at any rate he has asked a question that should interest every one who has awakened to self-consciousness. To answer his question a study of the environment is necessary, but heredity must not be neglected by any means.

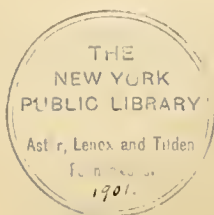

This pamphlet contains the names of three generations of the descendants of Andrew Moore, of Poquonock, Conn. It is printed to facilitate the search for the later generations of the family. The figures set opposite the names of the children indicate which of them it has been possible to trace. Unless the record has been closed by death the absence of a number shows the necessity for further search.

Most people can tell the name of their grandfather, but when they attempt more ancient history than that, they are very soon in the prehistoric period. This pamphlet will reach a helping hand to them—a hand with a reach across a period of more than a hundred years from the first settlement of the country. If they can “catch on” to any one of this fourth generation then it will be “clear sailing” to the emigrant.

I urgently request those who know themselves to be descendants of Andrew Moore to assist in the search for the missing members of the family. I ask you to tackle every “Moore” you meet and get the name of his grandfather and maiden name of his grandmother and so on as far as he can go and report the facts to the undersigned. I shall publish a genealogy of the family if I succeed in procuring the records.

H. L. MOORE.

THE DESCENDANTS OF ANDREW MOORE.

- 1 The first mention, yet discovered, of Andrew Moore, of Poquonock, Conn., is the record of his marriage, which is as follows: "Andrew Moore & fara Phelps yt was Dafter of famuell Phelps were married by capten Newberry, february. 15. 1671." Samuel Phelps was the son of William, the emigrant who came to Dorchester, Mass., in 1630. Samuel married Sarah (daughter of Edward) Griswold in Windsor, Conn., Nov. 10, 1650. Sarah (Phelps) Moore was born March 16, 1653-4. Andrew had a grant of land in Simsbury, Conn., in 1680, but he lived in Windsor where the birth of all his children is recorded, except that of his son William. He died there Nov. 29, 1719, and the inventory of his estate was made on the 17th of December following. The distribution of the property took place on the 5th of April, 1720. The estate was appraised at £320. Each of his nine children took his share of the property. The widow, Sarah Moore, was appointed administrator of the estate.
